PURPOSE AND OUTCOMES

Prerequisites: This course is open to all Rehabilitation Science PhD students. Other graduate students are invited to register with approval of the instructor.

Course overview

Students meet and interview national and international renowned rehabilitation scientists to discuss key professional and scientific issues related to rehabilitation science. As part of this course, students attend and critique the Rehabilitation Science Seminars, complete seminal readings in visiting scientists' area of focus, and moderate and participate in discussion.

Relation to Program Outcomes

This course was designed to meet a number of learning outcomes outlined in the Rehabilitation Science academic assessment plan submitted to Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) the accrediting body of the University of Florida.

- Students will utilize various Rehabilitation Science theories and models to analyze and inform research, treatments, and inter-professional approaches to ethical considerations
- Students will critique models and theories of rehabilitation research
- Students will examine how competencies in a focused area of rehabilitation science can be applied in a research study

Course Objectives and/or Goals

By completion of this course, a student will be able to:

- Compare and contrast the strengths and weaknesses of the different research methodologies used in rehabilitation science research.
- Frame the relevance of each speaker research to rehabilitation practice.
- Evaluate the impact (in terms of innovation and significance) of each speaker research to rehabilitation practice.
- Elaborate how each speaker research methodology or area of research will impact and shape him/her as scientist.

Instructional Methods

We will use online discussion as the primary instructional method. Discussions will occur in small groups as well as among the entire cohort of students enrolled in the course. Readings will be assigned as pertinent to the topics to be covered in the seminar.

During this time, students will have the opportunity to interview the speaker and ask questions related but not limited to rehabilitation science research, career development, mentoring, grant writing, speaker career path, work-to-life balance, etc.

The instructors will evaluate each student participation in the speaker interview (35% of the total grade). This will include if the student:

- Demonstrates an advance preparation for class
- Actively participates in group and class discussions, asking questions and occasionally introducing relevant new information about topics
- Volunteers willingly and carries own share of the group's responsibilities
- Listens actively and shows understanding by paraphrasing or by acknowledging and building on others' ideas

Each student is required to write a 1-page essay. There is no single approach to the essay and you may discuss the content of the seminar, make recommendations for future research in this area, and discuss how and why the topic covered in the speaker interview will shape your future as scientist. Essays will be submitted via Canvas and they are due the Tuesday following the seminar at 11:59PM, unless otherwise indicated.

Final paper:

Students will reflect on the range of speakers from the semester and use the outline to help guide your response. Note – you do not need to follow the outline exactly. The final is due on the date specified in the assignment tab in Canvas.

Only registered students are permitted to attend class. However, we recognize that students who are caretakers may face occasional unexpected challenges creating attendance barriers. Therefore, by exception, a department chair or his or her designee (e.g., instructors) may grant a student permission to bring a guest(s) for a total of two class sessions per semester. This is two sessions total across all courses. No further extensions will be granted. Please note that guests are not permitted to attend either cadaver or wet labs. Students are responsible for course material regardless of attendance. For additional information, please review the Classroom Guests of Students policy in its entirety. Link to full policy:
